ABSTRACT

In 1980, full-time state resident undergraduate students attending AASCU-member institutions paid an average of $712 for tuition and fees, and $1,605 for room and board charges. These figures reflect a 10.6 percent average increase over 1979 costs. Including books and supplies, transportation, and personal expenses, the cost of college attendance approximated $3,500 in September 1980. However, the percentage increase is slightly less than the increase in the Consumer Price Index. Increases in tuition and fees for graduate students averaged 10.5 percent. Tuition and fees and rates of increase vary by region, with the highest in the eastern states, and lower rates in the western and southern regions. Detailed information is provided, in tabular form, on tuition and fees, room and board costs, and percentage changes, according to region, year, level (undergraduate or graduate), resident and nonresident students, state, and institution. 1980-81 SUMMARY

In 1980, full-time state resident undergraduate students attending AASCU member institutions paid an average of $712 for tuition and fees, and $1605 for room and board charges. These figures reflect a 10.6 percent average increase ($224) over 1979 costs. Tuition and fees alone increaased 9.7 percent ($63). The College Scholarship Service estimates the cost of books and supplies, transportation, and personal expenses to be an additional $1250. In total, the cost of college attendance for full-time state resident undergraduates approximated $3500 in September 1980.

Rapid inflation modified the 1980 increases in college attendance costs. For example, between September 1979 and September 1980 the Consumer Price Index rose by 11.5 percent. In this context the 10.6 percent increase in tuition and fees and room and board charges did not quite keep pace with inflation.

Tuition and fees for state resident graduate students at AASCU member institutions averaged increases of $77 or 10.5 percent and reached $809 this fall. At the same time, tuition and fee charges for non-resident undergraduates and non-resident graduates increased $136 (8.2 percent) and $151 (9.1 percent) respectively. Average tuitions and fees reached $1795 for non-resident undergraduate students and $1803 for non-resident graduate students.

Tuitions and fees and their rates of increase varied by region. The distinction of having both the highest tuition and fee totals and the highest percentage increases went to AASCU members in the eastern states where state resident undergraduate tuitions averaged $873, an increase of 11.6

percent over the previous year. Non-resident undergraduate tuitions averaged $2116, up 8.7 percent. The lowest averages for state resident undergraduates and percentage increases were in the western states where tuitions and fees increased by 8.0 percent and reached $517. However, the lowest average non-resident undergraduate tuitions and fees were in the southern states, $1591, up 8.8 percent.

Among individual states average tuitions and fees for state resident undergraduate students reached a high of $1290 in Pennsylvania and a low of $218 in California. The largest percentage increase, 28.5 percent (to $1190) occurred in New Hampshire and zero state resident tuition increases were reported in Iowa, Florida, Hawaii, North Dakota, Montana, Nevada and Washington. New Hampshire's non-resident undergraduate tuitions and fees were the highest in the nation, $3090; the highest percentage increase occurred in the District of Columbia, 23.8 percent (to $1432). Non-resident tuitions and fees did not increase in West Virginia, Iowa, North Dakota, Hawaii, Montana and Washington.

The tables on the following pages provide detailed information on changes in student charges in student, state and regional categories since the fall of 1979.

Methodological Note

Copies of last year's survey were sent to institutions, university systems or state agencies with the request that previously reported figures be reviewed and corrected as necessary and that 1980 figures be added. This approach sometimes results in different figures and state averages being reported for the previous year. Another factor that alters previously reported averages is that the institutional composition of AASCU membership changes from year to year.

Average figures are generated by totaling tuitions and fees by state and dividing the total by the number of institutions within a state. Regional and national averages are calculated by totaling tuition and fees by state and dividing by the number of states. Other approaches, such as weighting tuitions and fees at institutions in states by the percentage of institutional enrollments or totaling tuitions and fees by institution and dividing the number of institutions would result in moderately different averages.

For the first time this year the annual survey has been developed on an in-house AASCU computer. Thus, corrections can be made on a continuing basis throughout the year and special printouts and analyses will be available to the membership upon request.
